PROVIDING HEATING ASSISTANCE TO THOSE IN NEED

15 Point Furnace Check

With Old Man Winter on his way, it is time to think about all of those who may not have the means for a furnace inspection, and worse yet, do not have the means to afford the repairs. Many may be destined with a forecast of cold weather outside and inside their own homes.

The good news is we can help!

This event is to provide goodwill to those in need in our communities & to promote quality contractors and their employees. Also, this event gives contractors and techs the opportunity to share their expertise and knowledge with the Ferris State University HVACR students. They will accompany you and participate in this spirit of giving back affording them the opportunity to get out in the field, This provides a valuable experience for them.

If your organization is interested in participating in Grand Rapids, or has a low income project they would like to provide service to, themselves, anywhere in the state, please contact Executive Director M.J. D'Smith at 517-285-2420 or mjdsmith@miacca.org We are also looking for additional homes in Grand Rapids, if you might know of any.

The event will start at 8:30 a.m. at Schaafsma Heating and Cooling with coffee and doughnuts. We understand that you and your techs will be sacrificing a couple of hours on a Saturday, but you will be making a difference for those in need all through the heating season! For your generous participation in this event, MIACCA will hold an Appreciation Dinner the following week or so honoring those who participate. Your organization will also be recognized on our website and email blasts.
